

INTRODUCTION: 64518 is an angular, coherent, medium dark gray fragment (Fig. 1). It is fine-grained and crystalline; some tiny vesicles suggest that it is an impact melt. It contains no obvious clasts. The fragment was taken from a regolith sample collected near the rim of a subdued 15 m crater. It lacks zap pits.

FIGURE 1.